DETAILED ACTION

CLAIMS

Summary

Claims 1, 18 and 19 are the independent claims under consideration in this Office Action.

Claims 2-17 and 20-22 are the dependent claims under consideration in this Office Action.

Claim Rejections - 35 U.S.C. § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) The invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-4, 11-13, 15, 16 and 18-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Magnussen et al. (573,726).

Magnussen et al. teach a method and apparatus for smoothing garments. Magnussen et al. teach providing an item of clothing 3 (figure 1a, for example) and at least one gas jet 24 for supplying a stream of gas to the article where a portion of the garment is subjected to the gas in a direction not parallel to that portion. The garment is supported by an air permeable support (figure 4 or 6) and moves through a cabinet along a track for moving the garment for subjecting the garment to the gas (figure 2, for example). The jets are positioned on opposite sides of the track and thus subject the garment to opposing forces of gas, which in part include moistening the garment and then drying the garment along the track of the housing.

Claims 1-4, 12, 13 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Hakim (573,726).

Hakim teaches a method and apparatus for smoothing garments. Hakim teaches providing an item of clothing 7 (figure 1) and at least one gas jet 21 for supplying a stream of gas to the article where a portion of the garment is subjected to the gas in a direction not parallel to that portion. The garment is supported by an air permeable support 6 and is subjected to the gas. The jet is positionable within the garment for supporting portions of the garment by the gas itself and where the gas passes through the garment out from within in opposing directions.

Claims 1-8, 12, 13 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 102(b) as being anticipated by Estes et al. (5,815,961).

Estes et al. teach a method and apparatus for smoothing garments. Estes et al. teach providing an item of clothing (figure 4) and at least one moistening gas jet 42 for supplying a stream of gas to the article where a portion of the garment is subjected to the gas in a direction not parallel to that portion. The garment is supported by an air permeable support (figure 2) where the support fits within the garment and allows gas to flow to and through the garment in opposing directions, and sides of the garment, in equal force.

ALLOWABLE SUBJECT MATTER

Claims 9,10,14 and 17 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

PERTINENT CITATIONS

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Wingfield et al., and Irving illustrate clothes drying enclosures with means for providing the garments with moisture and/or steam for conditioning the garments.
